

TORPEDO BOAT SHUBRICK INJURED BY THE MARYLAND

GREAT HOLE DRIVEN
IN SHUBRICK'S SIDE

Richmond-Built Torpedo Boat Is Run Into by the Steamer Maryland in Fog.

GOTTEN TO THE NAVY YARD

Prompt Closing of Water Compartment and Vigorous Use of Pumps Keep Her Afloat.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] NORFOLK, Va., November 22.—The torpedo boat Shubrick, with a great gash through her starboard side, twelve feet above the bow, well cutting the water in two places, the result of a collision with the steamer Maryland, of the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad, between Old Point Comfort and Thimble Light in the lower Chesapeake Bay to-day, was placed in dry dock at the Norfolk Navy Yard this afternoon.

It is certain that the vessel would have gone down with all on board but for the prompt operation of its automatic water-light doors. Without the water-tight compartments no vessel the size of the Shubrick could have kept afloat two minutes with such a hole in its hull. Even with the compartments closed the vessel came near going down.

The collision occurred in a dense fog which hung low, obscuring the Shub-rick until the Maryland was fifteen feet from her. Lieutenant Cooke, in command of the Shubrick, ordered his vessel ahead at full speed, and immediately after the great hull of the Maryland loomed above the deck of the Shubrick in an effort to evade the collision, but the time was too short. The big passenger steamer and tiny torpedo boat came together with a crash, the sharp prow of the Maryland cutting its way into the Shubrick. The torpedo boat Stockton, which was following the Shubrick in the run of the torpedo boat base, was also struck, but not so badly.
She came to the assistance of the disabled vessel and towed it to shoal water. At the same time the pumps of the Stockton were assisting in keeping down the water in the Shubrick.

When it was ascertained that the Shubrick could be kept afloat, the Stockton towed it to Old Point, where the navy tug Mohawk and Wabnet took charge of it and proceeded with it to the navy yard. It required constant pumping and careful handling to keep the Shubrick afloat.

Lieutenant Cooke states that the fog horn of the Shubrick was being sounded just before the crash, but does not think it was heard aboard the Maryland. Not a man aboard the Shubrick was hurt, and every one aboard stuck to his post in the face of danger.
Lieutenant Cooke was on the bridge.

Built in Richmond.
The torpedo boat Shubrick was the first ship built at the yard of the William R. Trigg Shipbuilding Company in Richmond, and President William McKinley was the principal speaker at the christening ceremonies here in 1906. The Shubrick was one of the number of the torpedo fleet built here.
The torpedo boat Stockton, which went to the assistance of the Shubrick, was also built at the Trigg yards here.

To Investigate Cause.
WASHINGTON, D. C., November 22.—
A telegram was received at the Navy Department from Commander Berry at the Norfolk Navy Yard, stating that the torpedo boat Shubrick was in collision to-day with the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Line steamer Maryland in Hampton Roads and was damaged to some extent.

The boat has been taken to the navy yard to be docked and examined, and a board of inquiry will be appointed to fix the responsibility for the collision. The Shubrick was not attached to the torpedo boat fleet, which is under orders to proceed to the Pacific.

Secretary Cortelyou to Allot New Certificates Where Need Is Greatest.

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 22.—
An important announcement of policy was made by Secretary Cortelyou late this afternoon in regard to the allotment of the new one-year Treasury certificates which indicates that the secretary is prepared to cut red tape as far as possible and place the proceeds of the sale of the certificates promptly at the disposal of the money market. Secretary Cortelyou is carefully studying the applications for certificates in order to make the allotments in the manner which will be most beneficial to the monetary situation.

The secretary continued to receive calls to-day from prominent bankers and lenders from various points in the country, who were anxious to obtain the new issue. Among those who called on Secretary Cortelyou today was Mr. Sol. Wexler, vice-president of the Whitney Central Bank, of New Orleans.

Mr. Wexler reported that the cotton movement was going forward remarkably well under the adverse conditions prevailing. The New Orleans banks are supplying currency to the cotton growing districts, and at the same time are maintaining adequate cash reserves. It is desired, however, to obtain all the assistance possible from the Treasury, in order to prevent a deficiency of currency, which would congest the cotton crop at Southern ports, prevent the drawing of bills against shipments to Europe, thus far the difficulty in disposing of bills for cash at New York, which was somewhat acute two or three weeks ago, has been largely overcome, partly by an improvement in the general situation and partly by direct dealings with Europe.

Are Receiving Suggestions.
A great variety of rumors are in circulation in regard to the purpose of the President and Secretary Cort-elyou in regard to currency legislation.
Suggestions such as the insuring of deposits in national banks, which Mr.
Bryan has just introduced, the issue of additional bank-notes against State and municipal bonds, and the requirement of interest on government deposits in the banks, are reported to have been presented to members of the administration and to have been favorably received.

The fact appears to be, however, that the President and Secretary of the Treasury are simply assuming a receptive attitude and are listening to all suggestions which are made to them without committing themselves to any.

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 22.— The Senators from the new State of Oklahoma will make no attempt to be sworn in when Congress meets on Dethe Democratic leaders in Congress, but will wait a day or two and get elected by their Legislature. The Governor of Oklahoma, in appointing the Senators, acted contrary to precedent, if not law. All other newly-admitted States sent no Senators to Congress until the Legislature met and elected

The following poem, written by a has the breezy atmosphere of the popular poet and author who lived in the West and died in England.

Our Jim.
(Apology to Bret Harte.) Say there, fellows! don't you know Jim?

Everybody ought to know him.
He's straight and tall, well, about six feet,
And wears good clothes; he's always With a preacher look on his face And dignified, becoming grace, You'd think him pious, but he ain't;
I know him, who he's the real deal, Cause some nights he gets with the boys

And dips into their social joys.
He's a good fellow, and his friends And never thinks of selfish ends.
With a big, well-filled pocketbook, Which on it has no clasp nor hook, He throws around his cash galore,
And always wants to buy some more,
With open house to those who call.
He "vets" 'em with a manly "ball,"
And steers 'em, too, in princely style,
With a benign, friendly smile, Let every one think well of him,
Of our good-natured kind "Old Jim," OLD SHY.
